

The challenges and innovations that beset European theatre from the mid-fifteenth century to the end of the sixteenth century both enriched and imperiled this cultural institution. The renewal of interest in antique forms of theatre—tragedies and comedies—accompanied the displacement of passion and saint's plays, while some of these popular forms were repurposed for political motives. Cross-cultural adaptation and translation flourished; authors increasingly tied their names to texts; productions were steered to elite audiences. Verse plays both humorous and dramatic jostled with the theatrical innovation of commedia dell'arte, which deemphasized written text in favor of set characters and physical improvisation. The social and governmental satires of farce, carnival play, and fool's play often morphed into the Wars of Religion waged onstage, in turn leading to the suppression of authors and performances.

This conference, organized by Dr. Sharon D. King and Professor Massimo Ciavolella, addresses some of the myriad ways theatre was reinvented, restyled, reimagined, and reproduced in communities on the continent and in England during the later Middle Ages and early modern periods. It also explores how these plays are received and perceived today. In conjunction with the conference, two early plays will be performed by Les Enfants Sans Abri: the anonymous farce The Gallant Who Got Away With It and Marguerite de Navarre's Stricken.
