Touching Shakespeare:
Proximity, Precarity, and Resilience in Renaissance Drama and Modern Life

UCLA Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies
Shakespeare Symposium
Friday, February 13, and Saturday, February 14, 2015
Friday, February 13, 2015 | UCLA Royce Hall, Room 314

1 pm Registration, Coffee

1:30 Welcoming Remarks: Massimo Ciavolella (UCLA), CMRS Director; Lowell Gallagher (UCLA); Julia Reinhard Lupton (UC Irvine)

2:00 W. B. Worthen (Barnard College, Columbia University)
“Remediating OP; or, ‘Shakespeare You Can Throw Beer At’”
Moderator: Ian Munro (UC Irvine)

2:45 Break

3:00 David Glimp (University of Colorado at Boulder)
“Quod Omnes Tangit: Taxes and the Sense of the Strange in Shakespeare’s King John”
Moderator: Matthew Smith (Azusa Pacific University)

3:45 Break

4:00 Julian Yates (University of Delaware)
“Counting Sheep in the Belly of the Wolf”
Moderator: Andrew Griffin (UC Santa Barbara)

4:45 Wrap-up remarks for the day

5:00 Reception (Royce 306 Loggia)

Saturday, February 14, 2015 | UCLA Royce Hall, Room 314

9:30 am Coffee, Pastries

9:45 Opening remarks: James Kearney (UC Santa Barbara)

10:00 Aranye Fradenburg (UC Santa Barbara)
“Distributed Cognition in Shakespeare’s Sonnets”
Moderator: Kent Lehnhof (Chapman University)

10:45 Break

11:00 Allison Deutermann (CUNY)
“How to Hear the ‘fatal screech-owl’: Resilient Listening in 3 Henry VI”
Moderator: Arvind Thomas (UCLA)

11:45 Lunch Break

1 pm Laurie Shannon (Northwestern University)
“How Hamlet’s Kindness”
Moderator: Robert N. Watson (UCLA)

1:45 Break

2:00 Roundtable Discussion: Sara Burdorff (UCLA); Peter Cibula (UC Irvine); Chris Dearner (UC Irvine); Christopher Foley (UC Santa Barbara); James Funk (UC Irvine); Kailey Giordano (UC San Diego); Christine Gottlieb (UCLA); Kristen McCants (UC Santa Barbara); Holly Moyer (UCLA)

3:00 Closing Remarks: Julia Reinhard Lupton (UC Irvine)

Touching Shakespeare: Proximity, Precarity, and Resilience in Renaissance Drama and Modern Life

Touch, sensing, and sensation are lively topics in the humanities right now. Touch intimates physical proximity and calls to mind the vulnerable body and the resilient flesh, even as it also carries tacit knowledge of the deep co-implication of physical and imaginative or intuitive aspects of proximity. The aim of this conference is to expose sensation to an existential and political triad of terms, by supplementing proximity, the emotional calculus of spatial closeness, with precarity — the forms of risk associated with economic, legal, or creaturely disability and interdependence — and with resilience — the responsive adaptation and accommodation to the physical and social environment by which individuals cope with precarity.

In Shakespearean drama, the triad of proximity, precarity, and resilience concerns more than the ongoing task of building sustainable relations between humans; it also entails recognition of the co-participation of human and nonhuman actors in the making of a habitable world. The plays of Shakespeare are documents of survival, prompts for improvisation, and exercises in pattern recognition with the capacity not only to inform us about the prior histories of proximity, precarity and resilience in relation to the senses, but also to aid us in our ongoing efforts to inhabit the spaces shaped by human effort, technological complexity, and environmental vulnerability today.

Advance registration not required. No fee. Limited seating on a first-come first-served basis. Self-pay parking in lots 2, 3, 4, and 5. More parking information at https://main.transportation.ucla.edu/campus-parking/visitors

cmrs@humnet.ucla.edu | 310-825-1880 | cmrs.ucla.edu